

CANDIDATES ON WINNING TICKET

Men Named by Republican Convention All Capable and Trustworthy

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION RECORDS OF NOMINEES SHOW REASONS FOR VOTES.

James D. Murdoch, the next mayor of Salt Lake City, has been a resident of Utah for thirty years. He is a prominent mining engineer and has been for years actively connected with the development of the Park City district. In his mining and other business interests he has been associated with former Mayor Ezra Thompson for a number of years.

Mr. Murdoch has always been a stalwart Republican. He was elected a member of the constitutional convention from Summit county, and his careful and judicious work as a member of this body is evidenced in the superior constitution of the state of Utah.

Nine years ago Mr. Murdoch moved to Salt Lake from Park City. Previously he had been active in municipal affairs in Park City and had been a member of the city council. After coming to Salt Lake he was made a member of the board of public works by Mayor Thompson. He served on this board for two years and made a careful study of municipal improvements.

His experience in the study of municipal government was increased by his splendid service for the last two years as a member of the city council. Though the only Republican member of the city council, he has been influential in inaugurating many municipal reforms and is considered by everyone in the city as one of the ablest members of the city council.

Mr. Murdoch has extensive business interests throughout the state. He is a director of the State Bank of Utah and has large real estate holdings in the city. His mining interests bring him in contact with all of the prominent mining operators of the west.

His municipal interests in a business way and his careful and conscientious study of municipal government make of him one of the strongest, most popular and best prepared candidates for mayor that any party could possibly choose.

A. H. Peabody.
A. H. Peabody, who was nominated by the Republicans of Salt Lake yesterday for the office of city treasurer, came to Utah twenty-four years ago and opened the books of the old Commercial National bank, rising with that concern to the position of assistant cashier. He remained with this bank until the time of the reorganization of the Merchants' bank of Salt Lake, of which institution he now is vice president.

Mr. Peabody always has been a Republican, but has held a public office. His business experience especially qualifies him for the position of treasurer, and he has proved in the same court the office with the same care that he has given to his private business, while the public is assured that the same courteous treatment will be extended toward anyone having business with the office as has characterized the business with which he has been connected.

I. E. Willey.

I. E. Willey, named by the Republican city committee for city attorney, is a native of Utah. He was born in Davis county and educated at the University of Utah. After completing his course at the state university Mr. Willey attended Columbia university and was graduated from the law course.

Returning to Utah, Mr. Willey was admitted to the bar of this state. He began the practice of law in Davis county and in 1904 was elected county attorney of Davis county. He served two years in this capacity and has an excellent record of forceful and fearless administration. After retiring from the office of county attorney Mr. Willey moved to Salt Lake and is now a prominent member of the bar of this city.

Mr. Willey has made a specialty of corporation law, which makes him especially fitted to fill the position to which he will be elected. He is known as an attorney of superior ability. His opinion on legal matters is considered authoritative by attorneys elder in years and in practice.

Major H. P. Myton.

Major H. P. Myton, whom all parties will unite in electing recorder of Salt Lake City, is a man of varied experience. Major Myton came to Utah in 1887 as a member of the United States Indian commission. He was appointed by President McKinley to this position while engaged in constructing an electric line of railway from Elkhart to Goshen, Ind. Previously Major Myton had lived in Kansas. He was a member of the Kansas legislature and United States land commissioner at Garden City, Kan.

Major Myton served one year on the Indian commission and was then appointed United States Indian agent for the Uintah and Ouray agency, with headquarters at White Rocks. Major Myton served in this capacity for five years. He is responsible largely for the wonderful development of the Uintah country, and many flourishing villages which have grown up in this territory during the last decade. One of these, the flourishing little city of Myton, takes its name from the major.

OTTO T. BARNARD,

In 1904 Major Myton was elected a presidential elector from Utah and was one of those whose votes helped to swell the Roosevelt majority in the electoral college. Since that time he has been engaged in the irrigated lands business and has been connected with several enterprises which have reclaimed from the desert wastes of the state fertile farm lands. Following the election of Governor Spry and during the time that the office of United States marshal was vacant Major Myton served as deputy United States marshal.

To the Republican city ticket this fall Major Myton is sure to draw a large proportion of the strength of the independent voters. His qualifications for the office are beyond question and he will prove one of the most popular candidates.

J. A. Edwards.
For the position of city auditor the Republicans could have chosen no candidate better fitted for the position than is their nominee, J. A. Edwards. Mr. Edwards is an expert accountant and has been thoroughly prepared for the intricate task of carefully handling the city's books.

Mr. Edwards was born and reared in Utah and has lived all of his life in the state. A great part of his life has been spent in Box Elder county. In 1900 Mr. Edwards was elected county treasurer of Box Elder county on the Republican ticket and two years later was chosen to succeed himself in the position. In 1904 he was nominated and elected state auditor on the Republican ticket.

During the four years in the office of state auditor Mr. Edwards has proven himself a careful and active public officer. His strict attention to duty and his careful handling of the books of the state gives him an enviable reputation for honesty and efficiency. He will undoubtedly prove to be one of the best auditors the city has ever had.

Y. M. C. A. TO GET MEMBERS NEEDED

Work Has Progressed and Is to Be Extended Until Next Saturday Night.

A PERMANENT COMMITTEE

LEADERS ENGAGED IN INCREASING LISTS WILL CONTINUE.

The membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. met twice yesterday to report decided gains in their campaign for 300 members. At luncheon 125 new members were reported and at 6:30 o'clock 30 and this number was finally swelled at 10 o'clock to 175. One captain, S. L. Sowles, brought in twenty-one members by his own efforts in twenty-four hours.

The campaign has been an immense benefit in calling the attention of a large number of young men to the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. in this city. Because it was not possible to get the 300 members invited to make up their minds before the expiration of the date set for the close of this campaign, the committee decided last night to continue their work until Saturday. On that day they will meet at 1 p. m. to report the 300 campaign a success. It is probable that out of this campaign committee will grow a permanent membership committee, who will look after the inviting of eligible young men into membership throughout the year.

As one captain expressed it: "We will make a mistake if we close this campaign tonight. There is no reason why instead of having 1,400 members, the Y. M. C. A. should not have 3,000 members."

Considerable enthusiasm was manifested by the teams upon the appearance in the dining room of Mr. Windsor V. Rice, president of the association, who has just returned from the east. He expressed himself as greatly pleased with the work which the young men were accomplishing.

BELIEVES BABE WAS MURDERED

Sheriff Investigates Discovery of Little Body in Shallow Grave Near Pest House.

The decomposed body of a 3-months-old male infant was pulled from a shallow grave near the old city pest house on the road to Parley's canyon, last night by W. H. Hennefer, a commercial photographer, who noticed the little mound of earth with a piece of clothing, as he passed that way in a carriage.

Upon reaching the city Hennefer notified Sheriff Joseph C. Sharp, who in turn notified Justice of the Peace F. M. Bishop, and sent Deputy Sheriff Axel H. Steele to the scene. The body was removed to the Evans undertaking parlors. The coroner at the body made it impossible to learn if the babe had met a violent death, but the sheriff believes the child was murdered. It had probably been buried a week. It was scarcely six inches below the surface. According to residents in that isolated district, a man and a woman carrying something wrapped in a large shawl, and a spade, were seen in the vicinity a week ago.

It is necessary to obtain a class of 100 members this year to get the privilege of the gymnasium.

The class includes young women from the best families. Another meeting will be held Thursday night, Oct. 7, the meeting being preceded by an exhibition of the senior men's class in gymnastic work and swimming.

WIRE IS DRAWING NEAR IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

The last sixteenth of the American League is being led by three and one-half lengths and appears to be going strong. Philadelphia, the contender, stumbled yesterday when she could not break even with the White Sox. The Tigers have two games with Boston and Chicago. They were the two of these to get the official sign at the wire. Philadelphia has three more games with Chicago and two with Washington, the tall order in the race. All five games is the fighting hope for the Athletics with the small chance that Detroit will lose the majority of the games to be played.

The little book says the Tigers and the Pirates.

Official Report on Natural Bridge Discovered in Arizona.

(Special to The Herald-Republican.)

Washington, Sept. 29.—In his recent reports of field work, William B. Douglass, examiner of surveys, general land office, has submitted segregation surveys made of two extensive prehistoric ruins within the limits of the Navajo national monument, Arizona, and the segregation survey and careful measurements of the new ancient natural bridge discovered by him in southern Utah. Mr. Douglass has reported his knowledge of the approximate location of this highest of all natural bridges to the general land office Oct. 4, 1908, and in his instructions for the current year's work was directed to visit and definitely locate the bridge and determine its character. Commissioner Dennett having in view the submission to the President of a form for a proclamation creating a national monument of the bridge if its character would warrant such reservation.

First to See Bridge.

Mr. Douglass' report, which has just been received by the general land office, states that from Ojito, Utah, a party of gentlemen from Utah, who desired to get the benefit of his Indian guide, Mike Boy, accompanied him to the bridge. Mr. Douglass reports that he himself was the first white man to see the bridge. His measurements on 173.25 feet for length of span, and 308.82 feet for height from the top of bridge to the stream bed below. A tract of 160 acres was surveyed out with the bridge in the center.

This marvelous natural structure is in a deep canyon draining the northwest slope of Navajo mountain, and is peculiar not only because of its exceptional size, but also because the top is in the form of a pronounced arch, other known natural bridges in Utah and elsewhere being approximately level on top. Some idea of the tremendous size of the bridge may be obtained when it is remembered that it is three-fifths as high as the Washington monument and spans a vertical canyon wider than Pennsylvania avenue.

Prehistoric Ruins.

Mr. Douglass describes the two prehistoric ruins, which he segregated by surveys including 160 acres each, as containing at the present time 146 and ninety-five rooms, respectively, but which were undoubtedly originally much larger. He thinks they are not only worth preserving, as far as possible, but restored. Five other ruins were visited and measured, but were not deemed worthy of segregation surveys, the largest having but fifty rooms and being in an advanced state of obliteration, and chiefly of interest to the archaeologists.
